of New York

For Vice President
CHARLES W. FAIRBANKS
of Indiana

Chicago, June 10.—The Republican convention was called to order at 11:50, being delayed by a conference of the leaders.

Senator Smoot reported for the conference committee that it had presented to Progressive committee the name of Justice Hughes as the compromise candidate and that it had been presented to the Progressive convention and that this morning Roosevelt had sent a telegram to the Progressives urging harmony and pleading with convention to support Lodge.

Reported Roosevelt informed followers that he would not run against Hughes. Smoot said that Progressive convention had tabled Roosevelt's appeal.

Senator Weeks took the platform and withdrew his name without favoring any one.

Sherman of Illinois withdrew McCormick of Illinois. Said he would vote for Hughes.

McDonald of Colorado withdrew name of Roosevelt, speaking for all the Roosevelt delegates.

On third ballot Hughes was nominated, New Jersey giving him 27 votes making more than enough to nominate. The demonstration started at once and while not prolonged was enthusiastic.

The convention proceeded to the nomination for vice president. Colorado yielded to Pennsylvania and Wannamaker named Fairbanks. Oldrich of Wisconsin named Burkett of Nebraska.

Fairbanks was nominated on first ballot.

The convention at 2:15 adjourned sine die. Fairbanks has not yet consented to accept the vice presidency but Indiana leaders are trying to persuade him by phone.

Justice Hughes has accepted and will issue a statement in a few days.

AMERICA FIRST, ADEQUATE DEFENSE INDUSTRIAL JUSTICE HUGHES' PLANKS

Nominee Declares Principles in Telegram of Acceptance

RESIGNS POSITION ON BENCH

New Yorker Strong for United Party and Promises Heart and Soul for Campaign—Favors a Strict Civil Service

Washington, Jun 12.—Justice Hughes late Saturday sent a telegram to Chairman Harding of the Republican national convention formally accepting the Republican nomination for the presidency.

At the same time it was announced that the justice had resigned as associate justice of the supreme court of the United States.

Answers Call of Duty

Following is the telegram to Chairman Harding:

"Mr. Chairman and Delegates: I have not desired the nomination—I have wished to remain on the bench. But in this crucial period of our national history I recognize that it is your right to summon and that it is my paramount duty to respond. You speak at a time of national exigency, transcending merely partisan considerations. You voice the demand for a dominant, thoroughgoing Americanism with with protective upbuilding policies, essential to our peace and security; and to that call in this crisis, I cannot fail to answer with this pledge of all that is in me to the service of the country. Therefore, I accept the nomination.

"I stand for the firm and unflinching maintenance of all rights of American citizens on land and sea. I neither impugn motives nor underestimate difficulties. But it is most regrettably true that in our foreign relations we have suffered incalculably from the weak and vacillating course which has been taken with regard to Mexico—a course lamentably wrong with regard to both our rights and our duties.

"We interfered without consistency, and while seeking to dictate when we were not concerned, we utterly failed to appreciate and discharge our plain duty to our own citizens.

"At the outset of the administration the high responsibilities of our diplomatic intercourse with foreign nations were subordinated to a conception of partisan requirements and presented to the world a humiliating spectacle of ineptitude.

To Dignify Our Place Among Nations

"Belated efforts have not availed to recover the influence and prestige so unfortunately sacrificed and brave words have been stripped of their force by indecision.

"I desire to see our diplomacy restored to its best standards and to have these advanced; to have no sacrifices of national interest to partisan expediences; to have the first ability of the country always at its command here and abroad in diplomatic intercourse; to maintain firmly our rights under international law; insisting steadfastly upon all our rights as mutual and fully performing our international obligations; and by the clear correctness and justice of our position and our manifest ability and disposition to sustain them to dignify our place among the nations.

One Country, One Flag

"I stand for an Americanism that knows no ulterior purposes for a patriotism that is single and complete. Whether native or naturalized, or whatever race or creed, we have but one country and we do not for an instant tolerate any division of allegiance.

"I believe in making prompt provision to secure absolutely our national security. I believe in preparedness, not only entirely adequate for our defense with respect to numbers and equipment in both army and navy, but with all thoroughness to the end that in each branch of the service there may be the utmost efficiency under the most competent administrative heads.

No Danger of Militarism

"We are devoted to the ideals of honorable peace. We wish to promote all wise and practical measures for the just settlement of international disputes. In view of our abiding ideals, there is no danger of militarism in this country.

"We have no policies of aggression; no lust for territory, no zeal for strife. It is in this spirit that we demand adequate provision for national defense and we condemn inexcusable neglect that has been shown in this matter of first national importance.

"We must have the strength which self-respect demands, the strength of an efficient nation ready for every emergency.

Labor Must Have Its Due

"Our preparation must be industrial and economic as well as military. Our severest tests will come after the war is over. We must make a fair and wise readjustment of the tariff. In accordance with sound protective principles, to insure our economic independence and to maintain American standards of living, we must conserve the just interests of labor, realizing that in democracy, patriotism and national strength must be rooted in even-handed justice.

A Strong Domestic Policy

"In preventing, as we must, unjust discriminations and monopolistic practices, we must still be zealous to assure the foundations of honest business. Particularly should we seek the expansion of foreign trade.

"We must not throttle American enterprise here or abroad, but rather promote it and take pride in honorable achievements. We must take up the serious problems of transportation, of interstate and foreign commerce in a sensible and candid manner, and provide an enduring basis for prosperity by the intelligent use of the constitutional powers of congress, so as adequately to protect the public on the one hand, and on the other to conserve the essential instrumentalities of progress.

"I stand for the principles of our civil service laws. In every department of government the highest efficiency must be insisted upon. For all laws and programs are vain without efficient and impartial administration.

Asks a United Party

"I cannot within the limits of this statement speak upon all the subjects that will require attention. I can only say that I fully indorse the platform you have adopted.

"I deeply appreciate the responsibility you impose. I should have been glad to have that responsibility placed upon another. But I shall undertake to meet it, grateful for the confidence you express. I sincerely trust that all former differences may be forgotten and that we may have the united effort in a patriotic realization of our national need and opportunity.

"I have resigned my judicial office and am ready to devote myself unreservedly to the campaign. (Signed) "CHARLES E. HUGHES."

ROOSEVELT NOMINATED BY THE PROGRESSIVES

Chicago, June 10.—The Progressive convention at 12:35 nominated Roosevelt, after word was received that Roosevelt's telegram proposing Lodge as compromise candidate had been read before Republican convention and that landslide toward Hughes was imminent in the Republican convention.

The Progressive convention adjourned until 3 o'clock to nominate a vice president.

WAR GAME FATAL

ROY APPLEBERRY ACCIDENTALLY SHOT BY PLAYMATE

22 Calibre Rifle Which Was Supposed To Be Unloaded Pointed at the Youth With Tragic Results

Roy Appleberry, the 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Van Appleberry was accidentally shot and killed yesterday at 4 o'clock in Herington by a gun in the hands of Harry Stiles, a 12-year-old playmate. It is alleged that a group of boys with Appleberry on one side and Stiles on the other had been playing war and in the process of the game a 22 rifle, which was supposed to be unloaded was secured and in a playful manner it was pointed at Appleberry and the trigger pulled. The bullet penetrated the heart causing instant death.

There are other stories circulating at Herington concerning the tragedy. County Attorney Blachoff and Sheriff Hassler went down this morning to conduct an investigation. At 3:30 this afternoon the coroner's inquest was being held and it has not yet been determined as to the nature of the boy's death.

Appleberry was the son of a laborer. A twin brother, Ray, was on his side in the war game, as the story goes. Some startling evidence was expected to be brought out this afternoon.
